IOTA ADVISORS' UPDATE

The brothers at IOTA had another successful recruit period initiating 27 new brothers. This along with one transferring brother from the University of Illinois brings the chapter's membership to 123, an IOTA record! IOTA is the largest fraternity at DU!

Will Rader along with his fellow directors and chairmen are doing one excellent job leading the chapter. The chapter programming remains robust – community service, philanthropic efforts, social, athletics, alumni relations, parental relations, sexual assault prevention, mental health programming, heritage programming, brotherhood and bonding events, academic improvement efforts, risk prevention programming, just to highlight some of what IOTA is doing.

The chapter hosted DU's new Chancellor Dr. Jeremy Haefner, he spoke to the brothers about his vision for DU as well as discussing the role Greek Life should play on campus.

I wish to thank all of our advisors and members of our house corporation for the efforts. You can imagine mentoring such a large number of brothers is quite a challenge.

IOTA will be celebrating their 100th Anniversary on October 2-4, 2020. Please SAVE THE DATE and join us for a special Centennial Celebration Reunion, details on page 2.

A special shout out to Don Reisfeld who continues to do a great job as editor and publisher of An Iota's Worth as well as helping us with other alumni communications.

We also want to thank those alumni who have agreed to be Alumni Big Brothers to our seniors as well as though who are working with our newest brothers.

A special thanks to Gary Berz, who continues to be my wingman on housing and alumni matters. It is a pleasure to continue to work with Gary who has been my brother since 1966!

It is certainly great to be a ZBT at DU!

On behalf of the Iota Centennial Celebration Committee

RSVP: Please reply by December 10th via email to: ehrllich14@aol.com if you intend to join us at IOTA's Centennial Celebration Reunion.

I would like to attend but need more time to decide and will let you know by Jan 31st.

For the KIDS – Give to Children’s Miracle Network

Dear Alumni,

My name is Henry England, I have just started my sophomore year double-majoring in Finance and Economics, and I am the current philanthropy chair with the Iota Chapter of the Zeta Beta Tau Fraternity at the University of Denver.

This year, like many others before, we are asking for your help in raising money for the Children’s Miracle Network. This remarkable charity is helping children all over the country receive the proper medical attention and care that they both need and deserve. It is our mission, as part of our brotherhood, and in the interest of the Get On The Ball philanthropy campaign, to help raise as much money #ForTheKids as possible.

Last year, we were able to raise over $15,000 for Children’s Miracle Network, and we could not have done that without the support from our loyal friends, family, and most importantly, alumni! We are hoping that you can help us break our previous record by donating whatever you can, as well as spreading the word of this wonderful cause.

If you wish to donate by check please address it to:

Zeta Beta Tau IOTA Chapter 1959 So. Columbine St., Denver, CO. 80210

However, it may be easier to donate through our funding page at:

<https://give.everydayhero.com/us/zbt-iota-chapter-2019-get-on-the-ball>

If you choose to donate through the fundraising page, please select “show all team members”, then scroll down to find my full name and select “Give Now”. Or follow this direct link:

<https://donate.everydayhero.com/us/give/henry-england-zbt>

When donating, please include your full name so that I can send you a personalized thank you note. We are hoping to have our best year of Get On The Ball yet and want YOU, our valued alumni, to be a part of it. If you have any questions or concerns, please contact me at henry.england@du.edu or by phone at (720) 955-8341.

Cordially, Fraternaly, and Sincerely,
Henry G. England

Remembering "Mr. Phi Sig" Joe Mosko 1909-1992

As an undergraduate student working his way through DU, Joe Mosko didn't forget his Jewish heritage. In 1928 he became president of the University of Denver chapter of Phi Sigma Delta, and served as a member of the national executive committee for 12 years. He went on to become national vice-president for eight years and received the national award for outstanding Phi Sig.

Nationally, Joe became affectionately known as "Mr. Phi Sig."

Joe Mosko's concern for youth led him to devote great effort in the building of the chapter house for his beloved fraternity.

President

My name is Will Rader and I am the President of Zeta Beta Tau IOTA Chapter at the University of Denver. I am honored to serve as the leader of this organization, especially as we celebrate 100 years of excellence at the University of Denver! I am committed to continuing the legacy of excellence within our brotherhood. I am proud to announce that this past academic year we were awarded multiple awards from Fraternity and Sorority Life (FSL). These included Excellence in Risk Management, Philanthropy, Community Service, and Intake/Recruitment. This summer, we had the privilege to host the ZBT national convention in Denver. Here we were awarded with Most Outstanding Recruitment, Most Outstanding Parent/Alumni Relations, Most Outstanding Publications, Most Outstanding Advisor (Stephen Ehrlich), and Runner up for best programming. This year we aim to continue our decade of dominance by providing over 1,000 hours of community service, raising more than $17,500 for Children's Miracle Network, Jewish Women and leading the way in new programs such as Sexual Assault Prevention, Mental Health Awareness, and Diversity/Inclusion. I look forward to expanding our network and remaining leaders both on our campus and on a national scale. Thanks to all who continually put forth the effort to make ZBT — IOTA an outstanding organization.

Here at IOTA we hope to continue improving not only our chapter, but each individual as well. Feel free to reach out to me at: William.Rader@du.edu with any questions, concerns or just to say hi!

It's great to be a Zeeb!

C, F & S,
William Rader
Iota Chapter President

Faculty Advisor

I am Greg Grauberger, the faculty advisor for ZBT, I work as an advisor at the Daniels College of Business and work closely with Daniels students and their families. My opportunity to serve for ZBT gives me the chance to branch out and enjoy the privilege of working with a group of brothers who are very visible and distinguished on campus. In the time I have been associated with ZBT, I have witnessed the energy and effort that the house places against all campus activities, creating well-rounded brothers who are creating meaningful, lifelong networks. As a priority, I want the current brothers to think back to the time that they joined ZBT, the commitment to stand shoulder to shoulder with their brothers, to respect and be there for them. Now, step back to re-examine that original commitment they made to themselves and to the others who are their ZBT family. Given that perspective, how can they personally extend and increase that commitment inside, and outside the ZBT community? What are some strategies and tactics to accomplish this academically, culturally, and socially? These will be some areas we explore in the future, and as parents and alums, your feedback is welcome.

I am very honored and flattered by the recognition, and to have been able to receive the Excellence, Chapter Faculty Adviser award in person. In my position in Daniels, I work with a lot of students, and a lot of Greek students, and each day I feel most fortunate to be connected specifically as a ZBT Brother with everyone individually, and as a group. It's a tremendous house, but one that has not even reached its potential academically, which is both a challenging and exciting proposition. While last night provides a snapshot for earned celebration, it also gives us the impetus to direct our momentum to the future and to visualize the accomplishments ahead of us.

Thanks again, and please give all the Brothers my sincere thanks at the upcoming chapter meeting.

These College Friends Pledged to Stay in Touch— 60 Years Later, They Still Do

Since 1956, a tight-knit group of sorority sisters have helped each other through weddings, careers, children and old age by writing letters; 'Our letters reflect the seasons of our lives so much'

By Clare Ansberry | Read the original sorority letters in The Wall Street Journal: <https://apple.news/AZhPyj-4bSduxxy5jdfL8Mw>

In the spring of 1956, the newly-graduated sisters of Gamma Phi Beta left their brick Tudor sorority house at Iowa State College and scattered across the country, promising to keep in touch.

They have. In February, as in the six decades past, each of the sorority sisters received a thick envelope in the mail containing a packet of individual letters from the others. Opening with Dear Sisters or Dear Gamma Phis, each woman's letter relates the year's highlights. "We were all at the same point in life when we met, and did a lot of growing up together," says Connie King Osborne, 84.

Through that annual exchange, which they call the Round Robin, the sisters have maintained ties over time and distance, sharing life's passages from the birth of children to the death of parents and more recently spouses, many college sweethearts. They laughed when one sister described accidentally wearing a wig backwards during a three-day women's education convention—"The bangs seemed so short!"—and cried when Jane Miller LaMair wrote, "This is my goodbye letter." Diagnosed with cancer, she knew she wouldn't live to write another one.

Nineteen sisters were in the Round Robin when they started. Five have died. One no longer sends a letter. The remaining 13, many widowed, are in their mid-80s and scattered among 11 states.

The letters have grown a little shorter. Some of their now-adult children help address envelopes or take dictation if needed, knowing the importance of the tradition to their mothers.

"I really envy them that closeness," says Carole Tillotson, who has helped her mom, Karla Baur Tillotson, type the letters in recent years. Carole had never read the letters before she began helping and was struck by their optimism and sense of sisterhood.

Letter-writing is largely a forgotten craft, especially in an era of texting and social media, but one that has value in deepening connections. The many details included in a single-spaced type-written page, and the effort behind it,

Gamma Phi Beta sisters at Iowa State on their pledge night in 1952. Upon graduation, several in the group vowed to keep in touch and did so, writing each other Round Robin letters each year for six decades.

allowed them to feel close in spite of their distance.

"There's almost six decades of conversations through those letters," says Tami Osborne Pederson, Connie's daughter. "Our generation would have gone the easier route."

Such long-lasting friendships provide a sense of connection, which researchers say is important to well-being. So, too, is continuity. Even as their lives, their health and circumstances change, the missives, arriving like gifts, have remained a welcome and reassuring constant. "It always makes me smile when I read them," says Gamma Phi sister Kathie Arnold Ervin. "They bring back happy memories of our time together."

Sorority Sisters

The women were in their late teens when they pledged to the sorority at Iowa State College (now Iowa State University) in 1952. Most were from towns across the Midwest, on their own for the first time, looking for connection and finding it in Gamma Phi Beta, which was founded on the values of "love, learning, labor, loyalty."

They lived together in the three-story house on sorority circle, under the watchful but caring eye of Mrs. Rhea Dahl, the housemother. Sue Kelley Harbour remembers confiding to Mrs. Dahl that she might have to quit the sorority because of grades. Mrs. Dahl offered to let her study in the kitchen, where it was quiet. "She was a swell person," says Sue.

All were home-economics majors, one of the few fields available to women. It included textiles and design, applied arts and household equipment, which meant learning about the latest refrigerators, washers and ranges. It would prepare them for marriage, career or both, the home economics dean said at the time.

The sisters were there to learn, but also to have fun. They built floats for homecoming, knitted socks for charities and regularly took first place in swimming, volleyball and singing competitions. "We had a sextet that did a song and dance routine, singing 'Five Foot Two, Eyes of Blue' and doing the Charleston," says Mary Dickerson Wolter, whose nickname is Zibbie.

Many hoped to find their mate and did, rushing back to tell sisters when they got pinned—given a boyfriend's fraternity pin, signaling he was serious—and celebrating with cookies and punch. Ten of the 19 sisters met their husbands at Iowa State. In later years, the husbands would often read the Round Robin letters to keep up with their own friends.

When graduation came, the 19 Gamma Phi sisters were eager to start the next chapter of their lives, but didn't want to lose touch.

"All of us were real close. We thought it would be nice to keep up with each other," says Sue.

Someone, they can't remember who, suggested starting a Round Robin, a type of progressive letter. Each would write a letter annually and send it to a designated sister, who would then make copies and mail the packets to everyone, usually around Valentine's Day. They took turns being the one in charge and dutifully updated addresses and phone numbers as the sisters moved over the years to places like Glacier, Wash. (pop. 100), and Saudi Arabia. No one wanted to let the others down.

"There is so little to do here. The school had one little league baseball team and 80 kids tried out for 15 positions. Transportation is such a problem for women (we can't drive) that there are very few organized activities," wrote Sarah Pyles Davis in 1977 from Saudi Arabia, where her husband was stationed with the U.S. Air Force. In later years, Sarah became the contact person if any sister was sick or lost a loved one. She would alert the others so they could call or send cards or flowers, often pink carnations, the sorority flower.

Living together at the Gamma Phi Beta house tightened the bond of the sisters, who ate, bunked and studied together under the watchful eye of their housemother, Mrs. Rhea Dahl.

Family Life

All the sisters married, two while they were still in college. Sue LaGrange Peterson, the sorority president, who went by Sue La, married the same day she graduated. Two sorority sisters were in her wedding. Connie married two days after graduation in a small ceremony at her family's farm. Mrs. Dahl, the housemother, gave her a cookbook.

Their children began arriving within a few years. "Catherine Kelley Harbour was born July 31 at U. of Ky. Medical Center. She's chunky and has multitudinous brown hair which sticks up and out," Sue wrote in 1970. As more children arrived, the mothers traded stories about their hectic lives, knowing the others could relate.

"Brian is two and more trouble than the other two." ... "I feel like an Army Sergeant trying to keep the two boys in line." ... "Our oldest drives us all nutty with his football." ... "My 'baby' started kindergarten this fall. I must be an abnormal mother because I didn't feel any sadness at all." One mother of a 10-year-old daughter longed for the return of "Victorian prudery." That was in 1970, the year after Woodstock.

The teen years were more difficult. One sister wrote of her son's suicide attempt and the hospitalization and long treatment that followed. "Thanks for listening—for reading—for understanding. As I said, it sometimes takes the bad years to make the good years," she wrote. "I love you all."

They confided other concerns. Miriam McKee Cerveny was 36 and had just celebrated her 10th anniversary when she mentioned in her letter that she lost feeling in her right leg, "which is most disconcerting." Subsequent letters chronicled the diagnosis of multiple sclerosis and its progression. Her sisters were worried but heartened by her resilience and humor. She would give a brief update on her MS, which she called her "dumb disease" followed with "enough of that," and proceed recounting an amusing discussion between her daughter who wanted pierced ears and her husband, who sug-

With their children barely out of the house, they began caring for aging parents. Kaye Johndreau Davis's mother lived with her for 17 years and suffered from depression. "Mom recovered once again from a bout with her recurrent depression, receiving electro-convulsive therapy via the local geriatric assessment program," she wrote to her sisters in 1997. There was an honesty among them, she says. "It was just what we were going through. I think it's important to share that, too."

They shared the loss of parents, siblings and children. "We always helped each other carry hard times," says Judy DeHaan Hetzer. She remembers the sisters reaching out to her after her son Jim died at the age of 26. He was born with heart disease and over the years she would update them about his health. "Even knowing from his birth that his life expectancy was limited, his death was a great shock," she wrote in 1988. "It is true that time helps us to heal, but it is also true that it is a very slow and painful process."

A new chapter in the letters began in the late 1970s when the first of their children married. Grandchildren arrived over the next decade. "Our letters reflect the seasons of our lives so much, the loss of parents, marriage and now grandchildren," wrote one sister in the late 1980s.

Working

After graduating, the sisters who didn't get married right away pursued their careers. Sue Kelley got a master's degree and then spent the next eight years teaching early childhood development at the University of Kentucky. Karla pursued the career of her dreams, working for "Better Homes and Gardens," editing and compiling recipes for cookbooks.

Alice Aita Newton went to Kansas City, Mo., and worked for Hallmark, designing greeting cards, then moved to San Francisco, where she worked for several years before deciding to travel around the world. "My plane ticket is good for a year so unless I meet Prince Charming, I'll be back next year at this time," she wrote to her sisters in 1963. While loving her adventure, she read their letters about their families and wanted the same for herself. "It sounds like you all have such nice families and homes. I hope some day I can be one of you. Being single is great so long as it doesn't last forever."

The sisters who did get married put whatever career aspirations they had on hold to raise children. Some had little choice.

Along with the annual letters to keep them in touch, the Gamma Phi Beta sisters have had five reunions, including one in 2001 in Scottsdale, Ariz., when Connie King Osborne made T-shirts with a picture of their sorority house on the front. PHOTO: SARAH PYLES DAVIS

Soon after she married in 1956, Connie moved to Nebraska, where her husband had a job at a dairy, and applied for a job teaching home economics. "The nice placement lady said we aren't hiring married women," she recalls, the explanation being that married women would get pregnant and leave. She eventually got a job with the local gas company traveling to neighboring communities to teach women how to cook pineapple upside-down cake in a skillet on the new gas stoves that had "burners with a brain." When she became pregnant, she remembers her boss telling her, "We really want you back but your place is at home."

She raised her children and ran a piano studio, teaching 35 students. In the late 1970s, she and her husband bought a book bindery and soon she was traveling to conventions throughout the country and making sales calls. "Long days—fun and challenging, but then sometimes exhausting and irritating," she wrote in 1978. At one point, when she was in charge of sending out the Round Robin, she surprised the sisters by compiling that year's letters into a bound book.

Karla resumed her cookbook development career after her children went to school. "In October I went to work—I think I'm out of my mind, but I do love it!" she wrote in 1978. She told them that she was working on a cookbook for Whirlpool to go with its new "combination range," a conventional oven with a microwave unit. "It's slick!" she wrote. Kaye started a preschool when her oldest was in first grade and spent the next 30 years in early education, the bulk with the Head Start Program, a government-funded early childhood learning program for low-income families. Zibbie became an occupational therapist, working with children who had intellectual and developmental disabilities. In spite of her multiple sclerosis, Miriam returned to work when her children were in school as a research home economist at Oscar Mayer, developing taste tests for new products.

Some returned to school. Marilyn Nelson Kern, who goes by Minnie, obtained two more degrees, the latest when she was 44. "I received my Masters in August after much blood, sweat, tears and strange meals for my family as I dashed off to class," she wrote in 1978. Two decades later, she was still teaching. "Some days I think it would be fun to not work so hard. Then I think 'How can I ever give this up?' Retirement for me is still an unknown."

When they retired, many worked in the community. One sister raised funds for a home for abused children, the symphony and YWCA. Another was chair of her local hospital board.

Later Years

Aging is the latest passage they share.

"Can it be possible this bird has flown for so many years? I still look back at our years together with such fond memories, laugh at the funny things and crying at the sad, always being thankful that the Lord put us all together for our special times," one sister wrote in 2017.

Several lost husbands in recent years. "Please know that we all care about you and are sorry for your loss," wrote Kaye in this year's letter.

Many moved to retirement communities. "I'm in the home. You know what that means!" Sue La half-joked in 2017, announcing that she was in a senior-living community. Her daughter Deborah Meyer typed the letter while her mother dictated it. Growing up, Deborah heard about the Round Robin and knew her mother cherished the letters. Now, they are even more of a gift. Her mother's short-term memory is weak, but her recollection of college days and sorority sisters is strong. Sue La keeps the letters in a basket by her chair and rereads them often.

Kaye has a housemate, Barbara, and a social life again. She belongs to a Gamma Phi alum book club and recently finished "Educated" by Tara Westover. Miriam is in assisted living. "My hands still work, my mouth still works and my mind still works, happily so," says Miriam.

Sue volunteers at an Alzheimer's day center and watches "Hogan's Heroes" reruns with her husband, Paul Harbour, while enjoying a glass of Kendall-Jackson wine. She has a new hip, which she loves. "The only thing I can't do ever again is play basketball. Well damn!"

All wrote about how much they missed Jane Miller LaMair, who had cancer and wrote her last letter in 2016.

Jane's daughter, Teresa Jenson, remembers her mother writing it. "It was a testament to how close they were to each other," she says. "They met the challenges of life together."

Annual IOTA football game: Alumni vs. Undergraduates ALUMNI WIN AGAIN on the Gridiron

Lead by QB Nic Miscioscia the alumni squad once again dominated the undergraduates who provided a spirited effort. Our files indicate the series record to be 28-3 in favor of the alumni.

ZBT Recruitment and Fall 2019 Initiation

A warm welcome to our 2019 fall rush class... 27 new brothers! Iota is excited and confident in this group of young men including two legacies this quarter!

We are happy to have such an amazing and large fall 2019 class of ZBTs! Welcome to IOTA!

Wish for Wheels, Build A Bike Day

Back on May 3rd the men of Zeta Beta Tau partnered with the women of Alpha Phi and did a bike build on behalf of Wish for Wheels. Visit: <https://wishforwheels.org/about>

We raised more than $3,250 and gave away over 30 bikes and helmets to the second graders at Munroe Elementary School part of the Denver Public School system on May 9th.

Wish for Wheels is a 501(c)(3) nonprofit organization that gives brand new bicycles and helmets to kids in low-income communities. Their unique model bundles corporate philanthropy, team building, and employee engagements through bike builds, to deliver brand new bikes to kids in the community. Their mission, through the gift of a new bicycle, is to transform the lives of kids from low-income families, broadening their scope for personal growth and a healthy lifestyle.

To learn more about our bike build, visit: <https://wishforwheels.org/programs/team-build-give>

Thanks for helping us live up to to the challenge in our ritual and Credo to do service and charity.

We thank Patrick Koehler our community service chairman for making this event happen.

Iota's Brothers of the Week!

First senior spotlight, we will again be celebrating graduating seniors, Will Rader, Will Moody and Max Chaitin . We asked both Will's and Max a couple of questions about their time and experience at ZBT.

Will Rader, Iota President
Hometown: Littleton, Colorado

Major: International Studies, with Spanish and Political Science minors

What is your favorite ZBT memory?

"My favorite memory is probably going rafting during spring retreat my freshman year."

What are your plans after graduation?

"My plans for post-grad right now are to travel as much as I can and I am working to save up for international studies graduate school."

Best of luck with your adventures Will!

Will Moody
Hometown: Colorado Springs, Colorado

Major: Molecular Biology

What is your favorite ZBT memory?

"My favorite ZBT event would have to be our fall retreat. Fall retreat is an undeniably unique fraternity experience and is where I have always felt closest to my brothers. It's always the perfect way to start my year off on a high note."

What are your plans after graduation?

"I am currently applying for medical school at the end of the year and I'll just be working until I finish applying."

What are your plans after graduation?

Favorite celeb doctor would no doubt have to be McSteamy himself.

Pictured: Will and his dad Dr. Moody
 Best of luck Will with medical school.

Max Chaitin, Operations Director
Hometown: Seattle, Washington

Major: Strategic Communications & Public Relations

What is your favorite ZBT memory?

"My favorite memory is seeing all of the freshmen really start to connect at fall retreat."

What are your plans after graduation?

"My post grad plans are undecided, hopefully working in PR in Denver for a year or Two."

Alumni Hockey Game DU vs UMD | Feb 1, 2020

We will once again be hosting an alumni night at DU hockey Feb. 1st at Magness Arena versus our NCAA champs UMD Bulldogs. Stay tuned for details.

Alumni Gatherings

Thanks to Jay Reano for his efforts in keeping the bonds of brotherhood alive and well in Denver.

Every third Tuesday local alumni meet for lunch. We share stories, mostly lies, about the past and catch up on current events. We are hoping more local alumni will join us, contact Jay via email: jreano@comcast.net for more information.

Why not consider doing this in your city?

Contact Steve Ehrlich: ehrllich14@aol.com and he'll get you contact information for alumni in your area.

IOTA'S ALUMNI BIG BROTHER PROGRAM

Thanks to those alumni serving as alumni big brothers this year. This program matches a graduating senior with an alumnus who serves as their mentor during their transition to the real world.

Why not consider being a mentor?

Programming Director

My name is Max Chaitin and I am the External VP and Programming Director of Iota Chapter. As the Programming Director, my job is to oversee my chairmen, and make sure they are creating opportunities for our chapter to be the best chapter it can be. I chose to run for this position, because ZBT has been a great experience for me and I want to make sure the right kids can have the right experience in this chapter. Being on exec has proved challenging, but has also been a great learning opportunity for me and has helped and his helping me grow as a leader.

C, F & S,
Max Chaitin
Programming Director,
Vice President of External Affairs

Finance Director

As an introduction to those whom I do not know, my name is Matthew McCormick and I am the Treasurer of the Iota Chapter of the Zeta Beta Tau Fraternity here at the University of Denver. I am responsible for managing all the chapter finances, excluding housing operations, with oversight and mentoring from our advisors. The dues that are collected from each brother pay for all of our programming throughout the spring. This includes things such as our spring retreat, brotherhood events such as meals out, sports games, Dave and Busters, our spring formal in the mountains, BBQs, ZBTahiti, our entire recruitment process, and social events with sororities.

Athletics

Fall quarter of 2019 was another great quarter for Iota athletics. We greatly enjoyed all the new brothers who came out to join us for soccer, football, and basketball. We made it to the championship for basketball and currently have our undefeated soccer team pursuing a championship of their own. Outside of intermural we played football games against our very own Iota alumni and the ZBT chapter of CU Boulder. We are looking forward to future success in our athletics.

Operations Director

My name is Jackson Spear and I am the current Operations director here at the Iota chapter. My job throughout the rest of this quarter and starting the new year are to help oversee the internal management of the chapter, help assist and plan events with half of our chairs and committees including academics, risk prevention and management, and community service. Overseeing these chairs and committees I am happy to announce that this year we are hoping to improve upon our philanthropy outcome of last year via Get on the Ball and hope to raise over $17,000. One of the main reasons I decided to pursue a position on Executive Board was my desire to leave a lasting impact on the chapter and having seen the influence and impact past E-boards have left, both on me and the chapter as a whole, I wanted to be sure to seek out a position that would allow me to leave a legacy of both community service, philanthropy, community engagement, and academic excellence, but also to ensure that the chapter can continue to move forward and have fun.

C, F & S,
Jackson Spear
Operations Director

Provost

Hello, my name is Max Michelotti. I am a senior in the Iota chapter of Zeta Beta Tau at the University of Denver. I am currently serving as our chapter's provost; this position oversees education for the chapter as a whole. This quarter I have overseen two main things; educating our new brothers on the history, ideals, values and goals of our chapter along with finding speakers to come into our all chapter meetings. This quarter we have had a mixture of interesting speakers. These speakers ranged from our new Chancellor of DU, to Greg Grauberger who is our chapters academic advisor, to Student Rights and Responsibilities and Fraternity and Sorority Life directors. All of these speakers provided our chapter with knowledge that cannot be found in the classroom and provides them with important knowledge of our campus life.

C, F & S,
Max Michelotti
Provost Chairmen

Academics

As the academic chair of the Iota chapter of the Zeta Beta Tau fraternity, it is my duty to help our brothers achieve academic success. Over the past year, we have increased our programming to encourage brothers to study. This programming brings upper and lower classmen together, allowing the younger students to learn study tips and methods. Older brothers have also been able to tutor younger brothers in subjects they have studied. We have also created academic awards. These awards recognize brothers who have excelled in the previous academic quarter. These awards will be given to the brother with the most improved grades from the previous academic year, as well as the highest overall big/little pair. This not only encourages academic success, but also academic improvement and dedication. These programs strive to help all brothers achieve GPAs above 2.75 and for IOTA to become the fraternity with the highest GPA on campus!

Community Service

Over the past fall quarter, our brothers had the opportunity to be involved with many community service events. During the month of October, we partnered with the Gamma Phi sorority and participated in a trail cleanup for the Denver Parks and Recreation Services. During that event we successfully cleaned up the South Plateau Park. Our brothers had the opportunity to participate in a food drive by donating cans to a local food bank. The main event of the quarter was raising money for the Children's Miracle Network by reaching out to recent alumni and students on campus.

Brotherly Overwatch

My name is Brendan McNair, and I am the new chair of our Brotherly Overwatch committee for the Zeta Beta Tau Fraternity. As the chair of this committee, my job is to raise awareness of mental illness and suicide prevention among the brothers. One of the main events that Brotherly Overwatch is responsible for is hosting optional events for brothers who want or need to talk to a fellow brother about things that are happening in their life. We hosted our first event in late October, and it was an amazing success. I did not know exactly what to expect before the event because it was my first time planning and attending the event, but I believe every brother in attendance was able to build stronger bonds with each other through each other's hardships. Throughout this quarter, I have also been trying to lay a foundation for the committee as we look forward to the rest of the year and beyond that. With the help of Ethan Boorsol, who was the previous Chairmen for the Brotherly Overwatch Committee, we have laid out a plan for the rest of the year. Because of this plan, I am incredibly excited and optimistic about the rest of this year with the opportunities we have to raise awareness about Mental Illness.

Alumni/Parental Relations

My Name is Vince Marciano and I am the Alumni Chair at the Iota Chapter of Zeta Beta Tau. My responsibilities this year entail the set up and running of all events for both alumni and the families of new members. I have planned football games, family weekend events, and look forward to working on many more events to help keep out alumni engaged with our current chapter. I am currently working on an email recovery project, which entails calling alumni and updating their emails in our database to ensure we are reaching as many brothers as possible. I have greatly enjoyed interacting with alumni of past years and love showing what advances we have made and how we have grown as a chapter entirely. I am excited to continue work and continue to bring alumni back to our house so they can meet our current classes and relive their years at Iota.

Vince Marciano
Alumni/Parental Relations Chairmen

Philanthropy

Philanthropy is one of the key mission's of our fraternity. We have worked to support amazing and deserving charities for years, with the Children's Miracle Network being our main recipient of fundraising efforts, while also committing time and resources to other causes such as the Gift Of Life and B Positive. We believe that philanthropy is part of the Social Responsibility we require of all brothers and that there are valuable lessons to be learned for a lifetime of giving and supporting our communities. So far this year, we have successfully completed our Get on The Ball campaign in which we roll around our 6ft tall beach ball collecting signatures, raising awareness for the Children's Miracle Network, and receiving donations from passersby. We've set a fundraising goal of $17,500 for this year and we couldn't be more excited to reach that goal and even surpass it by the end of the academic year, with the help of our brothers, community, family, and friends. Thank you if you've donated already! Look out for the big check we will be presenting to the hospital in 2020

Campus Coordinator

This has been a great role for me, especially as a freshman. It is very cool to have a leadership role where I get to check in with all the brothers. Not only does it allow me to interact with everyone, it allows me to help motivate my brothers to be more involved with DU so we can make a better name for ZBT. My duties as campus coordinator include: notifying my brothers of the many events going on around campus, and to help get my brothers involved with DU as well as keeping track of it. I myself am in the alpine club and the finance club. I plan on joining the real estate club and looking into more opportunities on and around campus next quarter. DU is an incredible school with endless opportunities and this position has helped me show that to my brothers. I cannot wait to continue on in this position and get ZBT as involved on campus as ever!

Retired in California desert at a golf community, but still keep a place downtown Chicago. I'm president (2-year) of our 850 homes HOA. Lisa retired last February from NBC, after more than 30 years of directing and producing NHL hockey. That said, she seems as busy as ever.

Our son Jeff and his life partner Molly have a new home on the north side of Chicago.

Planning some travel: New Zealand and Australia in February and Holland and the UK in the spring. Our niece is getting married in Nashville in November. Of course the big highlight is that we will see Steve and Laura Ehrlich when they visit the desert early next year!

I am on staff as a regional professional bowler with Brunswick and I continue to develop myself as bowling coach. I recently took my Silver Level Certification (a prerequisite for coaching at the college level) hoping to hear about passing by the end of the year. I have been running a consulting business for a few years now focused on manufacturing (as some of you know about my bowling training tools and drums). I have also been contracting on a few salesforce.com implementations and have recently taken an accounting position with a coal mining company in Wyoming (answered the call to help a friend). Going to lend a hand with the JDEdwards accounting system helping a friend who recently took over as controller for the mine. Just to keep things fresh and interesting!

It's quite a change moving to a small town of about 2000 but I'm looking forward to a reprieve from the congestion of the Denver metro area. Today's commute to the mine in a snowstorm was still more enjoyable than sitting on I-25 lol.
